BRIEF HISTORICAL SKETCH
OF

ANDREW McCORNACK and HELEN McGEOUGH, his wife
(Taken from the Centennial Celebration Records)

1342970

In the year 1838 Andrew McCornack and his wife Helen arrived in New York from Scotland. Three of their six children accompanied them: Janet, Alexander, and Andrew. One year before, Margaret, John, and William, had come to America. Margaret, who was Mrs. George McQueen, lived in Croton just above New York City, on the Hudson river. John and William settled near Rochester, New York.

Andrew and Helen were married about 1806. They lived on a farm called Annabaglish, seven miles from Newton Stewart in Southwest Scotland. They were strict in their religious beliefs. They belonged to the Covenanters. One of the tenets of this group was complete separation of Church and State. (Apparently they left the Scottish Presbyterian Church.)

Since half of the children had migrated to the new country, the question of joining them was discussed. Many factors were involved. One no doubt was the hilly unproductive sheep land of western Scotland. Helen, the wife and mother, had the best argument. She wanted the family to be together again. Andrew was sixty years old and reluctant to leave. After prayerful consideration the decision to go to the United States was reached. Leaving Liverpool, England, on a ship called Siddons on June 16, they landed in New York July 19, 1838.

After arriving in New York they visited the George McQueens at Croton and their sons John and William at Rochester. Deciding to go west into land recently vacated by the Indians, they then moved on to Illinois, joined by John and William, journeying through the "Erie Canal to Buffalo, then up Lake Erie, Lake Saint Clair, Lake Huron, Lake Michigan" to Chicago, and finally settling in a "fine country of prairie and woodland" forty miles to the west.

Here in the fertile land six miles west of Elgin, bought from the Indians three years previously, Andrew and Helen McCornack reestablished a home and clan of their own. Here they worshiped in the Reformed Presbyterian Church, now known as the Washington Church. The lovely grounds surrounding the Washington Church is the final resting place for many of the Andrew McCornack Clan.

SUPPLEMENT

1342970

James Rosborough married into the McCornack family. His brother William Rosborough lived on a farm near the McCornack homestead.

William's son Caldwell is still living. Caldwell and Nellie Ball Rosborough, his wife, have taken a vital interest in the McCornack family. They offered to share the expense of getting out the Family Tree. It seemed fitting that the record of their family be made a supplement. It is as follows:

CAIDWELL R. ROSBOROUGH

These addresses have been added to the Family Tree by Dr. R. L. MacCormack Sr., and, while not complete, will prove to be a valuable addition to the book. The addresses are listed following the order of the Family Tree.

AN APPRECIATION

I wish to thank Mrs. Melvin Severson for her work in mimeographing the family tree and putting the books together. We are grateful to Caldwell and Nellie Rosborough of Moline, Illinois, for helping Gladys and me defray at least part of the expense of putting out this valuable report.

As mentioned on the front cover, most of the credit goes to Albert James Gage and Olive Gage Hamilton who originated the idea and compiled the family tree of Andrew McCornack and Helen McGeough. It took years of patient effort and every descendant would join in expressing heartfelt thanks.
